You would just tell us that you have updated contact information for the stakeholder, and we would contact the collections agency to find out the status of the account. Depending on the status, we could possibly pull the account and re-send an invoice.

Thank you Dennis,

Yes, let me look into it and get back to you. What would be the process for pulling it out of collections if I make contact?

Hi Mike, this is Dennis Rader, supervisor of the Technical Research section of NBIDs. I've attached an invoice that was returned to us twice by the Post Office, perhaps you have a better address to send it to? On the copy of the envelope, you'll see both of the addresses we've attempted. This account has already gone to collections for this year, but it could be pulled out if you have more information. Could you let me know? Thank you.
